

What does the Community Care Advisory Council (CCAC) do?

The CCAC is a joint council focusing on issues in residential care or assisted living facilities and certified family homes. The Council is charged to make policy recommendations regarding (1) the coordination of licensing and enforcement standards; and (2) the provision of services to residents. The Council is also involved with advising the Department regarding the development of new rules, and providing feedback for proposed rules.

Who Serves on the CCAC?

The CCAC is composed of 22 members appointed by various government, industry, advocacy, and consumer groups.

When does the CCAC meet?

All meetings are held at the Medicaid Office located at 3232 Elder St. Conference Room D, in Boise, Idaho. Meetings begin at 9:00 AM Mountain Time.
